

Core brief

Thursday, 26 November 2015

Introduction

This issue of Core Brief provides information on funding for Inverclyde Continuing Care facility and provides a link to a press release on advice to protect against norovirus this winter.

Go-ahead for over £330 million of schools and health centres to be built

Around £330 million of investment in health and education facilities has been given the go-ahead by Deputy First Minister John Swinney.

Deputy First Minister John Swinney has today advised Parliament that, following an ONS review of proposals developed by the Scottish Futures Trust (SFT), he has instructed that ten new schools and two new health projects can now proceed to financial close as soon as possible – delivering an estimated capital investment value of around £330 million.

Robert Calderwood, NHS Greater Glasgow and Clyde Chief Executive, said: “We are delighted that the Scottish Government has today given the green light for £8 million Inverclyde Continuing Care facility.

“The new Inverclyde Continuing Care facility will deliver significant benefits for patients and construction will begin as soon as possible to ensure that our patients enjoy the enhanced services it will bring at the earliest opportunity.” Click here to read the full press release.

Latest press releases from Scottish Government

Advice to protect against norovirus this winter

Are your contact details up-to-date? Click here to check