

Core brief

Wednesday, 03 August 2016

Introduction

This issue provides information on new people management training programmes available via HRConnect.

People management training programmes

Following the reconfiguration of our Human Resources and Organisational Development Service, new resources and support for managers in NHSGGC are now available.

Whether you're a new manager looking for development as part of your induction or currently managing services within the organisation our new training programmes will provide you with the knowledge and skills to manage your people and teams effectively.

Our new suite of training modules will support you with the people management aspects of your role. The modules, including Attendance Management, Managing Conduct and Dignity at Work, will be available throughout the year. These sessions will be practical in nature and content. Consistent themes will run through all modules including person centred care, partnership working, equality and diversity, and managing difficult conversations.

The first set of dates and venues are available now and can be accessed through the HRConnect Management Development page.

If you are new to managing people there is also a one day programme that will introduce and outline your key responsibilities as a new manager to the organisation. This can also be accessed through the HRConnect Management Development page.

Are your contact details up-to-date? Click here to check