Introduction

This issue of Core Brief details information on a new BBC documentary about the Teenage Cancer Trust at the RHC.

“Growing Up With Cancer” – a 30 minute documentary filmed in our Royal Hospital for Children – will screen on the BBC 1 UK network on Monday 26 June at 7.30pm.

The film features staff and young patients going through cancer treatment in the hospital’s Teenage Cancer Unit.

The stories focus on Declan, Natasha, Connor and Nairn – capturing their highs and their lows; and their courage and fears. Doctors Ronan Kelly, Nicholas Heaney, and Fernando Pinto provide real clinical insight and compassion that portray so well what so many of our staff come to work to deliver for patients.

You may wish to get a seat in front of a telly on Monday or set your television to record the programme...

Meantime please find links below to two short extracts of the BBC film. Some staff will not be able to watch the clips on an NHSGGC PC because Flash Player is required to do this – but you will be able to use the links on a smart-phone or other non-work device.
